

IBF Distinguished Fellows: HELPING HANDS in the Indianapolis Community

Support of the Indianapolis Bar Foundation not only gives members of the legal community an opportunity to give back to Foundation-funded programs and grants—it also connects donors to local community organizations that depend on the active involvement of volunteers. The IBF has touched the lives of Hoosiers across the city through service projects hosted throughout the city during the course of the year.

Distinguished Fellows have spent several evenings in 2013 at the Indianapolis Ronald McDonald House, preparing and serving dinner to families staying at the house. Fellows also collected mountains of supplies to be donated to the house.

2013 Distinguished Fellows Class Project

Each year, the new class of IBF Distinguished Fellows takes on its own class project, giving the Fellows an opportunity to meet and network with their class while giving back to the community. The 2013 Fellows Class washed their hands, tied on aprons, and got to work preparing meals at Second Helpings.

Chopping vegetables and prepping other ingredients, these volunteers played a tangible role in the preparation of the 3,500 meals that Second Helpings provides each day to 70 social service agencies in the city.

About Indianapolis Bar Foundation Distinguished Fellows

The Indianapolis legal community thrives because of the dedication of many esteemed individuals who, using their unique talents, work together to advance justice and lead positive change. Each year the Indianapolis Bar Foundation honors such lawyers for their dedication to the law by bestowing on them the designation of Distinguished Fellow.

The Foundation's financial support is crucial to funding the programs and initiatives of the Indianapolis Bar Association. Indianapolis Bar Foundation Distinguished Fellows play a crucial role in the continuation of programs, services and resources that serve our colleagues, our community and our neighbors.
